

Abstract

An apparatus and method for measuring flow. A flow sensor includes a sensor conduit and a bypass having at least one capillary tube. At least one of the length, inside diameter, and cross-sectional shape of the sensor conduit is substantially equal to the 5 corresponding length, inside diameter, and cross-sectional shape of the at least one capillary tube.